

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Russell Kirk, author of The Conservative Mind and numerous other works, founded Modern Age together with Henry Regnery and David S. Collier and was the periodical's first editor.

Stephen J. Tonsor, professor of intellectual history at the University of Michigan, is widely regarded as a principal spokesman for American conservatism. During the first part of 1980 he was resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research.

M. E. Bradford, professor of English at the University of Dallas, has written for Modern Age for a decade. He is the author of A Better Guide Than Reason: Studies in the American Revolution, and is presently finishing God's New Messiah: A Critical View of Abraham Lincoln, with Thomas H. Landers, for Arlington House.

Dante Germino is professor of political science at the University of Virginia. He has written widely in the fields of political and social theory.

Neil MacNeil is the Congressional correspondent for Time magazine.

Thomas Molnar, professor of French literature at the City University of New York and professor of European intellectual history at C. W. Post College, is the author of many books, amongst them God and the Knowledge of Reality, Le Socialisme sans visage, Authority and its Enemies, and his recent Christian Humanism: A Critique of the Secular City and its Ideology.

Sally Jo Vasicko is professor of political science at Ball State University.

Lewis A. Lawson is professor of English at the University of Maryland.

The book reviews are contributed by: George A. Panichas, professor of English, University of Maryland; Herbert I. London, dean, Gallatin Division, New York University; Walter Trohan, former Washington correspondent and bureau chief of the Chicago Tribune; Arthur M. Diamond, Jr., postdoctoral fellow in economics at the University of Chicago; Michael Bordelon, chairman, social studies program, St. Thomas Episcopal School, Houston; Virgil Nemoianu, director of comparative literature, The Catholic University of America; Clyde Wilson, professor of history, University of South Carolina; Thomas Molnar, professor of French literature at the City University of New York and professor of European intellectual history at C. W. Post College; Harold L. Weatherby, professor of English, Vanderbilt University; Ralph Harper, author, critic, and recently retired rector of St. James's Church, Monkton, Maryland; James Collins, professor of philosophy, St. Louis University; John Russell, professor of English, University of Maryland; James A. Patrick, dean for university affairs, University of Dallas.